FORT MASON CENTER UPDATE

Fort Mason Foundation is now conducting free comprehensive tours of Fort Mason Center on the last Saturday of each month. The guided tour will include brief visits to most of the resident organizations, classrooms, theaters and museums. The next tour will take place on July 28, at 11 am; come dressed for the ocean breezes and bring along a picnic lunch to enjoy at the conclusion of the tour. Call 441-5706 for information and reservations.

Mississippi Johnny Waters and friends will be singing the blues at Fort Mason Center on Saturday, July 14, when the first Annual Bay Area Blues Conference takes place from noon until 6 pm. Sponsored by the San Francisco Blues Festival, the conference will include panel discussions, lectures and performances.

In summertime, your fancy may turn towards the sea. The Oceanic Society is preparing an array of programs designed to educate, enlighten and delight. Expeditions aboard an 80-foot schooner to the Channel Islands of Southern California will last for three days; the expeditions will be led by naturalist Mark Towne, who has made over 800 trips to the islands. Every weekend, eight-hour expeditions to the nearby Farallon Islands are conducted; this National Wildlife Refuge is noted for being the largest sea bird colony in the contiguous United States. A slide and film illustrated lecture series on the Farallones is also being offered. For children from 8 to 12, Sea Camp 84 is a two-week, wonder-filled experience as children are introduced to the life and lore of the Bay and ocean. For more information, call 441-5970.

Childen's Sea Camps are sponsored by the Oceanic Society, June through August.

THREE WAYS TO CELEBRATE THE FOURTH

On the 4th of July, the Pickle Family Circus will celebrate their tenth anniversary by presenting free performances to the City which has supported them so enthusiastically. The Pickle's joyous family show is a happy blend of circus and vaudeville traditions and has been presented throughout the western U.S. Just Desserts, the baker of heavenly desserts and pastries, is joining in the festivities by sponsoring a midway full of fun, food and games. The proceeds from the midway will go to the Pickle Family Circus School. There will be two performances here at Fort Mason Center, one at noon and the other at 3 pm. Although the shows are free, tickets are required and will be available at 11 am. For more information, call 826-0747.

Fireworks at sunset against the backdrop of San Francisco Bay—magic! The San Francisco Chronicle and the GGNRA will be presenting their annual 4th of July festivities at Crissy Field. Music, entertainment, refreshments, a children's stage and a procession will be featured. The fun starts at 2 pm; parking is available at the Presido. Admission is free; be sure to dress warmly.

Friends of the Fort are invited to watch the July 4th fireworks from the comfort and warmth of the Fort Mason Conference Center. Bring a picnic supper (no red wine please—it stains the carpet) and plan to arrive around 7 pm to enjoy the pre-fireworks family entertainment. Coffee, tea and hot chocolate will be provided. Free parking will be available nearby. Reservations are necessary, as space is limited and we want everyone to have a good view of the fireworks display. Members only. Call 441-5706 to reserve your space.

UNIQUE HEARINGS TO BE HELD AT FORT MASON CHILDREN TESTIFY ON BEHALF OF OTHER CHILDREN

Children will let their voices be heard to encourage other children to assume responsibility for the world we live in and for the issues that affect them. That is the purpose of the platform hearings to be held at Fort Mason Conference Center July 10-12, 9 am-4 pm.

During these hearings a local team of Children's Express reporters, aged 9-12, will be joined by a national team of kids from New York, Salem, Newark and Chicago. The reporters will interview witnesses about a wide range of children's issues: health and welfare with emphasis on hunger and malnutrition, health delivery systems and foster care, the juvenile justice system, protection of children under the Constitution, corporal punishment, and an intensive exploration of the educational system and youth employment in the U.S.

Founded in 1975, Children's Express has involved thousands of children in real world journalism, round-table discussions, and related activities. It is a news service staffed by reporters who are all 13 and younger, trained and reinforced by teenage assistant editors and adults who take care of business management, final editing and story assignment.

Each week, two Children's Express columns are filed over the UPI wires to about 2500 newspapers worldwide. CE has published magazines, newspapers, and a book, Listen to Us: the Children's Express Report. CE has also sent a news team to Thailand and Cambodia to talk with refugee children. The young reporters have covered two presidential inaugurations, four national political conventions, and numerous other political activities.

Witnesses who will testify at Fort Mason Center this month will include children with personal experiences to share, child advocates, doctors, politicians, educators, parents, researchers and writers. The findings and recommendations of the hearing examiners will be presented to the platform committees of both the Republican and Democratic parties at the conventions this summer. Since children cannot make their needs and opinions known at the ballot boxes, these hearings are aimed at making a powerful statement to the politicians and convention delegates about children's rights and to put America's children on the agenda for the first time!

The hearings are free and open to the public — adults and children alike. Come and listen to the voices of our children at the Fort Mason Conference Center this month and discover what a forceful impact their concern about world issues will have on you.
